History:

In March of 1966, Arnie Lowenberger and Ed Miryneck met at a national conference on physical education. It was the meeting between these two that eventually brought Lowenberger to Brock University which spurred the beginning of the Athletics Department.

When Lowenberger arrived at the University, he arrived with the intention of beginning an athletic department. One of the first changes he instituted, as Director of Physical Education and Athletics, was to make all of the Athletic clubs more official by applying for membership with the Ontario Intercollegiate Athletic Association (OIAA). The first teams to become part of the OIAA were cross-country, golf, curling, hockey and fencing. There were plans to have the Brock OIAA teams grow as well as to include women's sports on campus. Brock's most successful sport was rowing. Not only was it the most successful, but it also had a large number of female members. The coach at the time, Tony Biernacki, wanted to get these women on the water, but had no equipment for them to use or borrow. With news of the Lachine Boat Club in Quebec closing its doors, Biernacki traveled there with enough money to bring back equipment for the first women's rowing team at Brock. This not only furthered teams at Brock, but women's athletics.

After the initial start of these teams on a recognized level, Lowenberger spent the 1967-1968 season creating a program proposal for physical education, recreation and athletics. In the spring of 1968, Lowenberger had completed his plan and took the next step in making his proposal a reality. He appointed Bob Davis to oversee the inner workings of the Athletics Department and plan for its future. No longer having to oversee the Athletics Department, Lowenberger established a committee of physical educators from local high school boards. This board consisted of Nora Chatwin (Ministry of Education, Province of Ontario), Don McAuley (Director of Physical Education, Brock University, College of Education), Bob Davis and Lowenberger. The board's purpose was to develop a degree program in Physical Education at Brock, which they did and which was eventually approved in 1973.

The program was a success with an initial enrollment of 297 students. Due to the foresight and team work of Lowenberger and Davis, Brock University still has a strong Athletics program today.

Scope and Content: The fonds contains materials relating to the Brock University Athletics Department from the late 1960s to present. The materials included are reports, media releases, clippings, correspondence, memorabilia and photographs. Due to the large nature of this collection, duplicates were removed and discarded. Mounted team photographs were placed into a separate box, marked 'display'. If there was a duplicate of a mounted team photograph, it was placed within the regular collection; therefore if you cannot find the team picture you are looking for try the 'display' box. Materials have been arranged according to the folder titles in which they were received. Administrative records were arranged alphabetically and all photographs were arranged chronologically. Original order was retained for series II and III as they were already in chronological order. Negatives were placed with pictures whenever possible, otherwise they remained in the same chronological year as the photographs they came with. All negatives were counted by frame containing an image, not by row or blank frame. Photographs have been grouped by team and/or sporting event. Most photographs from the early years (1960s-1970s) are only men's sports teams, as women's teams were not yet developed.

Legend: There are many abbreviations throughout the collection and within the finding aid. This list should aid you in determining what each of the acronyms stands for.
